

Love Your Local Farmers Markets!

How about all that rain? What a doozie this past winter was—it felt like we would all float away. Hopefully, reading this now, you have found some secure footing and moments of sunshine to revel in the new shoots, bright greens and tender leaves those downpours permitted. More and more, nature's cycles are offering us the opportunity to think. These dramatic seasonal events are not easy to bear, yet provide learning and appreciation for what we have, what we need and what we continue to choose in our lives. Let's include the people who grow, harvest and bring to market our local food sources in those appreciations, through rain or shine.
