Love Your Local Farmers Markets!

Is anyone else feeling trepidation about winter's approach?

It seems like each year gets more and more intense. With our extreme weather shifts, there's potential disaster around every bend, or at least a power outage. But one beacon of cozy come wintertime, regardless of the rain or flooding or snowfall, is a pot of soup simmering on the stove (thank you propane), even if the lights are out. Savor the moments of warm, be thankful for the non-leaky roof, hold each other tight and just eat soup together. The simple things, like our amazing produce and the nourishing creations that we make with it, offer grounding opportunities for appreciation.
